Ethiopia: Tigray people 'ready to die' as leader rejects call to surrender

Diplomatic efforts to resolve the crisis in Ethiopia appeared in disarray on Tuesday, less than two days before a deadline for the surrender of the leadership of the restive northern region of Tigray expires, after which federal troops have been ordered to attack its capital. The leader of the Tigray People's Liberation Front (TPLF), the ruling party in the region, has said his people are "ready to die" defending their homeland, rejecting the prime minister's Sunday night demand that they lay down their arms within 72 hours. Abiy Ahmed launched a military campaign against the TPLF on 4 November, accusing it of attacking two federal military camps in the northern region, and of defying and seeking to destabilise his government. The federal army says its forces
