REUTERS

GENEVA, Oct 26 (Reuters) - Europe needs a "serious acceleration" in the fight against the coronavirus and a lack of contact-tracing capacity could drive the disease into the darkness, a top World Health Organization official said on Monday. In Europe the picture is unrelentingly grim as a string of countries reported record increases, led by France, which posted more than 50,000 daily cases for the first time on Sunday, while the continent passed the threshold of 250,000 deaths. The vast region, comprising 46 countries at WHO, accounted for 46% of global cases and nearly one third of deaths, said Mike Ryan, the WHO's top emergencies expert.

Source

The New York Times

WASHINGTON — The Trump administration imposed sweeping economic sanctions against Iran's oil sector on Monday as tensions between Washington and Tehran continue to escalate in the days leading up to the American presidential election. The Treasury Department announced sanctions on Iran's Ministry of Petroleum, the National Iranian Oil Company and its oil-tanker subsidiary for providing financial support to Iran's Islamic Revolutionary Guards Corps, the elite military unit that is designated as a terrorist group by the United States. The sanctions are expected to create a new obstacle should any future president seek to open negotiations with Iran.
