Somalia: Kenyan military base in Hosingow shelled

Hosingow (SD) – Al-Shabaab reportedly carried out a mortar attack today on an AMISOM base in Hosingow, Lower Juba region. The base attacked is occupied by Kenyan troops who are part of the AMISOM operations in Somalia, the troops responded with heavy artillery, locals told local news media. The exact number of casualties is not clear, with residents saying they heard gunshots from both sides. Al-Shabaab claimed that the attack caused casualties to the Kenyan troops stationed in Hosingow base. It was just last week that al-Shabaab carried out a direct attack on Kenyan troops on the outskirts of Dhobley in the Lower Jubba region, where at least seven Kenyan soldiers were killed, according to Kenya media reports. Most of Al-Shabaab...

46 Pygmies killed in militia attack in eastern DRC

Gunmen opened fire on a vehicle in Kabul around 830am on Sunday, Kabul police reported, and two female judges of the Supreme Court were killed and two other people--the driver and another female--were wounded in the attack, according to the Presidential Palace. The police are investigating the incident, said local officials. Previously, a security forces source said that preliminary findings indicated that those wounded were a driver and a female employee of the Ministry of Education. President Ashraf Ghani condemned the attack on the female judges in Kabul, saying that "attacks by the Taliban and other terrorist groups against defenseless people are against Islamic teaching and against the spirit of peace." Houthis killed as rebel offensive breaks Hodeidah agreement

Source

Yemen

Hodeidah

Dozens of rebels were killed as fighting broke out in Yemen's Hodeidah province on Sunday, with Iran-backed Houthi forces trying to break pro-government lines. Shooting started despite a December 2019 ceasefire agreement at UN-backed peace talks. Aseel Al Sakladi, a representative of Al Amalika Forces, told The National that Houthi fighters attacked positions held by the pro-government Joint Forces from the western edge of Hays, south of Hodeidah, about 5am on Sunday. Pro-government forces control a sliver of the coast from Mocha to the outskirts of Hodeidah city. If the Iran-backed rebels cut the line at Hays, they could encircle and secure their hold on the city. "Joint Forces destroyed three Houthi vehicles and killed dozens of their fighters..."

BANGUI, CENTRAL AFRICAN REPUBLIC – U.N. peacekeeping troops said they have retaken control of a city in the Central African Republic captured two weeks ago by armed groups waging an offensive against the government of President Faustin Archange Touadera. Rebels abandoned their positions in Bangassou, 750 kilometers east of the capital Bangui, and fled the city following an ultimatum on Friday from the U.N. peacekeeping force MINUSCA, the mission's spokesman Vladimir Monteiro said late Saturday. "The city of Bangassou is under the complete control of MINUSCA," Monteiro said, though he added that the U.N. force "remains on alert" to prevent any rebel return or other actions against civilians, the state authority and U.N. troops...

Egypt's public prosecutor refers three to court for joining terrorist group in Libya

Source ahramonline

Egypt's Public Prosecutor Hamada El-Sawi ordered the referral of three defendants to the state security emergency court on multiple charges, including joining a terrorist group in Libya, which aimed to execute attacks in Egypt. According to a statement by the public prosecution on Sunday, the three defendants — two fugitives and a detained citizen — are accused of assuming leadership positions in a terrorist group dubbed Murabitoon and joining Al-Qaeda in Libya. The statement noted that the terrorist group was led by Hesham Ashmawy, a former Egyptian army officer who was convicted of terrorism and executed by Egyptian authorities early in 2020 after being extradited from Libya. The Supreme State Security Prosecution interrogated the...
