At Least 8 Killed in Kabul Mortar Shell Attack Ahead of Mike Pompeo's Meeting With Taliban

Source

TIME

KABUL, Afghanistan — About 23 mortar shells slammed into different parts of the Afghan capital on Saturday, killing at least eight people and wounding 31 others, an official said. The shells were fired from two cars, Interior Ministry spokesperson Tariq Arian said. No one took immediate responsibility for the early morning attack that also targeted the posh Wazir Akbar Khan area of Kabul, which houses diplomatic missions. At least one rocket landed in the Iranian Embassy compound. In a tweet, Iran's embassy in Kabul confirmed that a rocket came down in the courtyard of the embassy compound and "a number of shrapnel" hit the embassy's main building, causing some damage to windows and equipment, without specifying the equipment...

KINSHASA, Congo (AP) — Armed rebels have killed at least 35 people in eastern Congo's Beni region this week, according to local officials. The bodies of 29 people were found after a mass killing in Kavuyiri in Virunga National Park, according to a statement from the provincial governor. It was not clear when the attack occurred. Another attack Tuesday killed at least six civilians in another area of Beni, it said. The provincial government condemned the attacks "perpetrated by men without faith or law" and blamed the Allied Democratic Forces, which are active in the region and have ties to the Islamic State group. The security situation in eastern Congo, especially Beni, has been deteriorating since Congo's military launched a large-scale operation about.

Mozambique police say northern village, site of reported beheadings, retaken from insurgents

Source: REUTERS

MAPUTO (Reuters) - Over 1,000 Mozambique troops on Thursday recaptured the northern village of Muidumbe from Islamist insurgents, police general commander Bernardino Rafael said, killing 16 and destroying some of their logistics. Mozambique's northernmost province of Cabo Delgado, home to gas developments worth some $60 billion, is grappling with an insurgency linked to Islamic State that has gathered pace this year, with insurgents regularly taking on the army and seizing entire towns. Speaking to troops in a field in Muidumbe, an area where local media reported a spate of beheadings by insurgents last week, Rafael congratulated the men for their victory but warned they had not won yet.

The coronavirus pandemic has been an unprecedented shock for the world in an extraordinary year, Saudi Arabia's King Salman bin Abdulaziz said during his G20 Riyadh Summit opening remarks, which he delivered virtually on Saturday evening. "The COVID-19 pandemic has been an unprecedented shock that affected the entire world within a short period of time, causing global economic and social losses," King Salman said, adding, "Our peoples and economies are still suffering from this shock. However, we will do our best to overcome this crisis through international cooperation". He emphasized the need for cooperation and to "give a strong message of hope and reassurance to our people through adopting policies to mitigate this crisis"...

Over 24,000 abuses against children in Sana'a

Source

Al Jazeera

The Houthis committed over 24,000 abuses against children of the capital Sana'a between November 2019 to November 2020. The Human Rights Office of the capital Sana'a said that these reported abuses included murder, abduction, assault, military recruitment and the stealing of children's aids. Director of the Human Rights Office of the capital Sana'a, Fahmi Al-Zubairy, said the child's world day is to expose abuses against children in Yemen. He indicated that abuses against children are on rise amid international tolerance to the Houthis' crimes. He explained that impunity of perpetrators encourages more abuses against the children in Yemen and increases risks on their health and education. He called on the international community and...
